2 Bombs Hit Party Building After Ulster Cabinet Named

BELFAST, March 25 (Reuters). Prima Minister Brian Faulkner tonight announced his new cabinat and within minutes the headquarters of his ruling Unionist party was hit by two gelignite bomb explosions.

Tha olasts rocked central Belfast and caused considerable damage to the headquarters, blowing out scores of windows. It was believed that there were no casualties and no one in the building at the time. The police tried to seal off the area in central Belfast, but the explosions brought hundreds of people to the scene. The party's headquarters, a drab four-story, building, was to be the scene tomorrow for a major speech by Mr. Paulkner to the party leaders.

The announcement of the new cabinet was made from a Belfast hote. The main surprises in the new list were the appointment of right-wing Unionist Harry West as minister of agriculture and a former Labor opposition member of the provincial parliament as minister of community relations. The West appointment was seen as a bid to bring unity to the Unionist party at a time when it seems to be splitting at the seams. But Mr. Faulkner also made a bid to bring unity to Northern Ireland's warring sectarian factions by appointing David Bleakley, a well-known moderate, to the post of minister of commu-

White House spokesman Ron Ziegler said the President would devote considerabla time during a ten-day stay at the Western White House to this undertaking. Mr. Ziegler told newsman today that the government hoped to recover some of the $840 million it has pot into the SST.

A senior House Republican introduced legislation today to sell government-backed bonds to continue financing the SST's devel-opment. Rep. Frank T. For Faster Pace on Concorde

By Henry Giniger

PARIS, March 25 (NYT).-The head of the French company making the Franco-British Concorde called today for accelerated development of the supersonic plane following refusal by the Senate to vote appropriations for an American competitor.

throughout the world. There have been rumors that the Tupolev might go into service in October.

A decision by the French and British governments to proceed with a production series of tha plane was to have been made this week, but has been put off until April 22. Airlines which have placed options for the Concorde were to have received the technical and economic data guaranteeing performances. But this also has been delayed. Although the American decision has been received here as removing the only source of Western competition for the Concorde. there has been some disquiet expressed that the decision would reinforce adversaries of supersonic flight in general and of the Concorde in particular, for a variety of ecological and economic TERSONS.

JERUSALEM. March 25 (WP). The United States was reported today actively involved in a twostage plan for reopening the Sucz Canal as part of a partial settlement of the Middle East crisis.

First stage of the plan called for dredging of the canal in return for Egyptian acceptance of a formal state of non-belligerency with Israel and a token pullback of Israeli troops along the east bank of the waterway.

At a later stage, the plan envisaged reopening the canal in exchange for Egyptian williogness to allow Israeli shipping to use the waterway - something Egypt consistently has refused to do since the creation of the state of Israel in 1942

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D., Ark. Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said that "the most surprising thing (during the session' was the reaction of some of the senators" to what Mr. Sen, Fulbright, "seemed to think that in any negotiation, we would require the Israelis to move out physically."

15,400 U.S.-South Vietnamese troops were "put out of action." In a special war communique. the supreme command of the People's Liberation Army Lao said: "Our armed forces and peo-ple have won total victory in

It also carried a map of the battle area along Route 9, indicating the pressure of North Vietnamese troops on Salgon forces.

Sources disclosed today. Sources said 3,800 South Vistnamese troops were killed, 775 missing and 5,200 wounded.

These sources, who have access to casualty reports, said the official communiques from South Vletnamese beadquarters being given to newsmen are lagging or are deliberately not reporting the true losses. The latest available "official" figures from South Vietnamese headquarters listed Salgon losses as 1,146 troops killed, 245 missing and 4,235 wounded.

At the same time, South Vietnamese headquarters has reported nearly 14.000 North Vietnamese troops killed. Many of these are attributed to U.S. bombers and helicopter gunships, and thus the claim is based largely on estimates and in some cases pure guessing. The U.S. command, in its latest available report on the American role, issued last Saturday, said "cumulative results of U.S. air operations in support of the South Vietnamese ... Indicate 3,600 enemy troops reported killed by air." The command has acknowledged that the tabulation is based on reports from "air crevs, forward air controllers and South Vietnamese forces."

154 More Americans Killed

The allied commands reported 5,750 Communists killed in the seven-day period that ended at midnight Saturday as compared with a revised Communist toll of 4,118 in the previous week. The U.S. command's report said this raised to 723,318 the number of Communists killed in Indochina since Jan. 1. 1961

U.S. headquarters said 54 Americans were killed in action lost week and 335 were wounded. Both totals were more than the previous week's 45 killed and 156 wounded. Total American combat casualties for the war now are pot at 44,729 killed and 296,369 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that government forces lost 620 men killed and 1,780 wounded last week as compared with 773 killed and 1.981 wounded in the previous week. These latest announced casualties pushed the number of South Vietnamese Eilled to 123,394 and the wounded to 186,353 during the course of the war.

By Rubert W. Irvin

PALM SPRINGS. Callf., March 25 (WP).-A top Britisb auto executive said today that Henry Ford 2d was right in criticizing English labor. The executive pre-dicted British workers will accept new controls and stop their wildcat strikes.

The comments were made by Sir William Lyons, deputy chair-man of British Leyland Motor Corp., the country's largest auto maker. He was interviewed during a press showing of two new models-a Jagua- with a V-12 cogine and a Triumph Stag sports car with a V-8. (Sir William founded Jaguar.

But the main topic of conversation was British labor unrest, the government's efforts to pass a labor reform bill imposing controls on unions, and the lengthy strike at Ford of Britain.

Heury Ford 2d, board chairman of the parent Ford Motor Co., blasted British labor oo a receot fact finding trip to England. He attacked the quality of British goods, the wildcat strikes and

The council had planned to present its annual Tamily of Man" award to Mr. Hope. But after anti-war clergymen protest-ed Mr. Hope's "uncritical endorsement of the military establishment and the Indochina the council's executive Var." body withdrew the award, which will go, posthumously, to Whitney M. ganza, regional chief engineer, and J. C. Gupta, technical officer. A guard on duty near the hangar was injured. The officlais were inflating the tire since the airline's technicians have been locked out in a labor dis-

West Berlin city government, while East Germany will be represented by Deputy Foreign Minister Guenter Kohrt. Hopes for an accord were raised during the day as police here observed East Berlin border guards supervising construction of six new customs sheds along the Communist side of the wall. The renewal of talks on wall passes appeared to be the first result of the return here last night of Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrasimov from Moscow. In addition to attending a plenary session of the Soviet Communist party's Central Committee Monday, Mr. Abrasimov engaged in Politburo-level consuitations on Berlin pollcy, East European sources reported.

These consultations led him to request a postponement until tomorrow of the 17th Big Four ambassadors conference on Berlin, which had originally been scheduled for today.

The East European sources said that Mr. Abrasimov had returned from Moscow with new proposals to be presented to the American, British and French envoys at tomorrow's meeting. For the last six weeks, the Elg Four-at expert as well as been negotiating on the basis of a draft agreement presented by the Western Allies. It remains to be seen whether Mr. Abrasl-mov will present a completely new Soviet counterproposal, or move toward a compromise on the basis of the Western draft. After the last meeting of the four ambassadors on March 9, Mr. Abrasimov said: "Slowly but surely we are moving forward." His statement was the first public expression of Soviet ontimism about the Berlin negotiations, which tomorrow will mark their first anniversary.

By John Noble Wilford NEW YORK, March 25 (NYT), American astronomers have discovered in a distant constella. tion a rapidly flaring source of X-rays that is strangely unlike any other known X-ray source in the heavens.

The phenomenon, which was discovered in data from a high-flying scientific balloon, was described by astronomers as an in. dication of massive celestial er-plosions that could be a "very crucial key in stellar evolution." Dr. Walter H. G. Lewin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, one of the discoverers said that the rapid fluctuation of tremendous radiation energies was "like absolutely mad." "The magnitude of the fluctuations was as if the sun increased its power by five times in a few seconds." Dr. Lewin said in a telephone interview from The Hegue, where he is lecturing.

The X-ray source is in the constellation Centaurus, which, like the earth, is in the Milky Way galaxy. The data leading to the discovery were recorded last October with X-ray detection instruments launched in a balloon that reached an altitude of 150,000 feet over Australia.

The X-ray energy coming from the constellation rose to a neak and then fell to a minimum over periods as short as 15 seconds The energy ontput in one second of flaring was about a million times greater than the total energy released by the sun in a

Dr. Lewin said that the rapid flux was an indication that the sources emitting the X-rays must be relatively small in astronomical terms, perhaps with a diameter the distance between the carth and the moon, or 238,000 miles. Such energy outputs from such small sources, Dr. Lewin said, are evidence of enormous cclestial explosions.

But Dr. Lewin, who is an astrophysicist with the MIT Center for Space Research, did not want to speculate on the nature of the events generating such energy in such erratic patterns:

Warning Sign of Technology

In the tangle of motives that inspired a Inajority of the Senate to join the House In cutting off money for the supersonic transport plane, economics, and priorities in allotting government funds, were apparently decisive. The effect, however, was a warning sign for technology, an indication that its advances will henceforth be under close scrutiny. And its values will be debated.

As such, it is a negative manifestation of the temper of the times, confined to a particular aspect of a particular industry. And, whatever the merits of this decision, it will cause enough damage to the aerospace complex, and those employed in it. to justify serious consideration of some positive directives for technology. The United States, at this stage of its industrial development, cannot afford to take the attitude of the Common Market toward its small farmers: merely accentuating condltions that drive them off their land without taking positive measures to insure their future elsewhere.

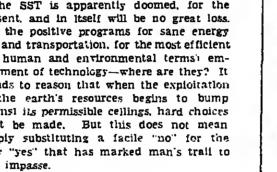

The movement toward a technological slowdown, at least in the quantity of its advances, is necessary if man is to come to terms with his environment. But this cannot be a purely negative approach, without grave danger to human survival. For example, the American industrial plant is geared to a certain accelerating consumption of energy. Thus far, efforts to couserve resources have been directed toward controlling the energy-since power plants of all mining, against the development of some kinds of oil resources in certain places (offshore, or in Alaska, for example); against atomic energy, dams and coal-burning power plants. And, by the same token, there are present or prospective shortages of power and strained relations with the present suppliers of petroleum products.

Similarly, there is agitation agaiost the noise and atmospheric pollution of planes and automobiles, against super-highways and new airports. But alternative methods of transportation, ships and trains, arc sbort of economically viable passenger services. and little is done to assist them in the public interest.

The SST is apparently doomed, for the present, and in itself will be no great loss. But the positive programs for same energy use and transportation, for the most efficient (in human and environmental terms) employment of technology-where are they? It stands to reason that when the exploitation of the earth's resources begins to bump against its permissible cellings, hard choices must be made. But this does not mean simply substituting a facile "no" for the easy "yes" that has marked man's trail to this impasse.

kinds are obvious intrusions on the environment. Control of demand, or elear understanding of just what kinds of energy do most harm to bumans and the land they live in, the air they breathe, have become secondary considerations. Thus there are movements against strip-

What Is The FBI Up To?

With due deliberation and with considerate and perhaps to the communities where they regard for the attorney general's objections. The Washington Post (and the IHT of March 25) published the substance of some FBI records-stolen by unknown persons from the FBI's office in Media. Pa., and sent to The Washington Post anonymously by mail. The attorney general, naturally, would have preferred no account at all of the records and, indeed, no mention of the theft. Because he asserted that "these records include information which would disclose the identity of confidential investigative sources and information relating to the national defense." The Washington Post carefully refrained from any facsimile reproduction of the documents sent to it and from any disclosure of the various FBI codes on the records, incloding identification numbers and names of agents and of persons under surveillance. We reported the substance of the records, however, because we were convinced that it served the public interest to do so. The records afford a glimpse, not often granted to the general public or even to committees of Congress, of some of the ways in which the FBI works and of some part of its concept of internal security. They indicate that the bureau focused a good deal of attention on college campuses and particularly on black student groups which. according to a memorandum issued by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, "pose a definite threat to the nation's stability and security": and that on the college campus in the Philadelphia area the bureau enlisted the services of the local police chief, the local postmaster, a campus security officer and a college switchboard operator to maintain surveillance on a professor regarded as a "radical." Other documents indicated that students were used, sometimes on a paid basis, as informers.

are situated as well. But it does not rise to the level of a threat to the internal security of the United States.

Moreover, the intrusion of undercover operatives and student informers into the life of an institution which has the interchange of ideas and the conflict of opinion as its very raison d'étre introduces a disruptive element more deadly than disorder. The FBI has never shown much sensitivity to the poisonous effect which its surveillance, and especially its reliance on faceless informers, has upon the democratic process and upon the practice of free speech. But it must be self-evident that discussion and controversy respecting governmental policies aud programs are bound to be inhibited if It is known that Big Brother, under disguise, is listening to them and reporting them.

The FBI is not only insensitive on this score; it is shown by these records to be callous and, indeed, deliberately corrupting.

'It's For Security ---- It Makes Us Feel More Secure'

S. GOVERHMENT RECORDS

By Alvin Shuster

SAIGON .- The alled thrust into Laos against North Vietnamese supply lines may have achieved some limited military success and killed thousands of the enemy, but in political propaganda terma, Hanoi scems to have won the day. Unlike the aftermath of last spring's joint American and South Vietnamese offensive against the Cambodian sanctuaries, the allies are cooping out looking like losers, whether they are or not. And barring some new dramatic future operation, which may well be in the works, the image pro-jected of a defeated South Vietnamese Army is likely to remain, much to the distress of American and South Vietnamese officials who believe it deserves better.

In casualty figures, Hanoi comes out second best. But, in the view diplomats and others here. Hanol realized the obvious-what went into Laos had to come out. High-ranking military sources also say that enemy strategy. which determined whether the operation would pass from one phase to the other, was not what had been anticipated. They say that heavy resistance was expected because of the crucial value of the trail network, but add that it came earlier in the struggle than predicted,

The planners had thought that the strongest Communist efforts would appear after the South Nixon seems to have made up his Vietnamese had moved further into Laos. There were some unexpected complications on the South Vietnamese side. The South Vietnamese, because of their difficulty with English, created serious problems when calling in air strikes, medical evacuation belicopters and other air support. And the belicopters had become even more important than planned because Route 9, which crosses the berder. could not be secured and used as a key supply road.

Moreover, the South Vietnamese command structure left much to be desired, with separate command posts for the airborne, infantry and marines. The key question, of course, is

PARIS .- France has decided to veto British entry into the Common Market if Britain doesn't raise its opening financial bid to at least 10 percent of tha EEC budget.

This is the word being apread in high official circles here following last week's disappointing fifth round of talks between the Common Market and Britain in Brussels. It may be just a French negotiating manenver to get the British to np the ante, but whatever the reasons, the word veto is being used for the first time since the new negotiations be-÷ . • 23.1.

The French are saying that they will veto any British offer under 10 percent and are making. it sound like more than a bluff. They still dismiss the first British bid of 3 percent as a bad joke, and when asked if a reasonable compromise might be 7 or 8 percent, they say absolutely not.

They are even telling a little joke about how the British wers informally told that their opening bid should be "in two figures' and the British took that to mean 2.7 or 2.8.

"It would be a very skillful move for the British to propose 10 percent at this point," said high-placed French sources.

The sources said that the financial bld is the key to everything. The other major problems -New Zealand, Commonwealth sugar and now sterling-could quickly be settled in a package agreement if the British showed "realism" on the financial bid. fhey said.

Much at Stake

At stake in the disagreement is $280 million in the first year of British membership-1973. The community's budget will be $4 billion in 1973 of which the British are offering to pay 3 percent, or $120 million. The French want at least $400 million. In 1978, the final year of the envisaged transition period, the total forecast budget is $4.5 billion. The Britisih are offering to pay $675 million in this year, or 15 percent; the French want at least 20 percent, or $900 million,

The British are more concerned about 1973 than 1978; It is the first year's payments, essentially, that must be sold to Parliament, and it is during the first years that Britam will be paying in without getting much in return.

"The British figures are ridiculons," said the French sources. "Britain is a big country and it must pay its share from the beginning. The trouble with Britain is that it has always wanted a special status. Historically they always had it and they are used to it. We accept that Britain has problems, but we have some too. We are making a great sacrifice."

These Frenchmen conceded that The International Herald Britain's entry into the Common Tribune welcomes letters from f the munity member that is a nuclear power. All this will change when Britain enters, and France will have to share these distinctions. France will cease to dominate the Common Market politically, and that is a psychological blow. The French have been saying that they are willing to pay this price; that the Europe they have in mind would he better off with Britain in than out. But for psychological reasons, they want

Britain to pay the price, too. The rivalry between the cour tries is too old, France, especially the Gaullists that linger: have teo many bed memorics. France. in many ways, will have its pound of flesh this time. The price will be exacted. "Britain always wants . 'to be more equal than the others." aald the sources. "France will never accept that."

When it was suggested that this was hardly the kind of talk for future partners, perhaps future states in a European confedera-tion, one of them said, with a sigh: "Ah, that is the myth of Europe. The myth of Europe is much too strong in many ways."

This lifting of a corner of the curtain on FBI activity in the name of internal security seems to us extremely disquieting. Granted that it by no means presents a complete picture, it nevertheless suggests strongly that an appropriate committee of the United States Congress ought to look much more thoroughly at what the bureau is doing. Disorder on college campuses undoubtedly presents a problem to the colleges concerned

One of the documents encourages agents to step up interviews with dissenters "for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia endemic in these circles and will further serve to get the point across there is an FBI agent behind every matibox. In addition, some will be overcome by the overwhelming personalities of the contacting agent and volunteer to tell allperbaps on a continuing basis."

That is a concept of internal security appropriate, perhaps, for the secret police of the Soviet Union but wholly inconsonant with the idea of a Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States. A government of snoopers in a nation of informers was hardly the vision in the minds of those who established the American republic.

We believe the American public needs to know what the FBI is doing. We believe the American public needs to think long and hard about whether internal security rests essentially upon official surveillance and the suppression of dissent or upon the traditional freedom of every citizen to speak his mind on any subject, whether others consider what he says wise or foolish, patriotic or subversive, conservative or radical. That is why we published the substance of the stolen FBI records.

The Verdict on Laos

From one failure to another, the campaign in Laos has been a big success nasty gossips say. The truth is probably not so grim. The campaign has certainly hampered enemy communications. But it has not disrupted them. This is proven by the fact that the North Vietnamese could counterattack everywhere. But, as people say in Washington, the campaign has probably prevented the North Vietnamese from mounting a big

Accurate Appearance?

What went wrong? Is the appearance of a South Vletnamese Army fleeing from tough Communist troops accurate? Did the alled operation fall short of its objectives?

The operation, as the Penlagon has now conceded, did end quicker than the planners would have liked, the enemy resistance and anti-aucraft fire was more intense than anticipated, the operation did seem to fall short of its roals and more men should have been committed to the battle. But it is not all that simple. Milliary sources insist that the plan all along called for the outnumbered South Vietnamese to maintain their mobility, to move into an area or a landing zone blasted out of the jungles by 15,000-pound bombs, search acd destroy what they could find, and then move out. American firepower provided by planes and ar-tillery at the border would lake care of the enemy.

"We got the enemy to mass and attack," one military source "That was a critical factor. It is hard to get across that this did not make us angry. They lost a lot of key people and while we did not think we would draw down their manpower that much, we aid. We used mobility and firegower once the operation got moving, and let the enemy throw est. awar his manpower."

The debale over the operation, of course. Is just beginning, but some tentative conclusions have been reached by military officers. diplomats and others here trying to draw up a balance sheet. Opinion seems to divide as follows:

On the plus side is the official view that the operation disrupt-ed the Ho Chi Miuh Trall network, if only temporarily, destroyed "significant" amounts of supplies, killed an estimated 13,000 Communists, damaged key supply arterics and left them mined. delayed enemy plans for offensives by three to six months, forced Hanoi to devote lime and energy to rebuilding its supply network, showed that the South Vietnamese could fight in tough enemy terrain without American advisers and left the troops with a new sense of confidence. On the minus side, the view is try the opportunity to serve his that the operation underscored weaknesses in South Vietnam's community by "voluntarily" choosing either a military service, army and its virtually total dea hospital service, an inner-city pendence on American planes and service, or a conservation service,

Volunteer Army

I have read with special interest Senator Buckley's article Toward a Volunteer U.S. Army March 18. He writes very well for his position and his arguments, especially that of individual facedom, are well taken. However, the many reasons which seem to favor the creation of a volunteer army are far overweighed by the few reasons against it. The first overwhelming reason underlying any arguments against such a proposal is that a volunteer army would lead to an increase in milltary political power, especially in a country as beterogenous as ours. It is usually the case in democracles which function properly, as has been the American tradition, that military authority is subservient to political authority. The reasoning is aimed at minimizing the political power of the mullary. For it seems tost, where the military is the strongest. the democratic process is the weak-

To create a volunteer army would focus, on one hand, the loyalty of the soldiers to the generals who bargaln. in their name, for pay and other benefits. And on the other hand, since authority derived from the consent of the governed, the military, voluntarily constructed would derive its authority more from the aruculated interests of those within its ranks than from the civil gov-ernment. It would follow from this that the volunteer army would become an increasingly strong political force. And, of courses, such a force would have the physical power to implement its demands irrespective of legal sanctions. Someone will eventually cross the Rubleon. This unforgettable miracle has bappened once already-on the day of Gen. de Gaulle'a funeralwhen pop-music-crazy Radio-Monte-Carlo was broadcasting classical music all day, without ramming down my ears a certain brand of hair-lotion. Those who remain will be given investment grants and guaranteed loans so long as they agree to modernize their holdings guidelines. For the first time, the Six have agreed to discriminate in favor of the poorer regions of the Com-mon Market, and notably the

France Wants Britain to Cut Its Balances

By James Goldsborough PARIS, March 25. — France wants Britain to reduce its sterling belances during the first years of Common Market mem-hership. Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said today. Mr. Schumann told the Foreign Affairs Commission of the National Assembly, however, that he regretted the publicity given to the recent French request that the role of sterling be examined during the present negotiations to cnlarge the Common Market. The French foreign minister said there was a contradiction between a community that had it; own reserves to support its currencies and an international reserve currency like sterling, He said that France wasn't asking that the sterling role be changed overnight, but that the sterling balances be reduced during the transition period at the beginning of British membership. Sterling balances are deposits held in Britain by members or former members of the Commonwealth. They far exceed the reserves of Britain and thus, if they were to be cashed in for collars or other convertible currency they would threaten to bankrupt the Bank of England. The fear within the EEC is that the reserves of the Common Market would then be used to pry off the liabilities amassed over the years by Britain.

of the market's dairy farmers own at most ten cows, two-thirds of all farms have less than 25 acres, and by rational standards, 75 percent of the Common Market's farms could be run on only three-quarters of a human labor unit each, according to the European Commission One of the chief faults of the common farm policy, so far, is that the level of prices alone has determined farmers' incomes. This has led to undiscriminating price increases over the years, leading in turn to chronic surplus production and dumping in third markets. Mr. Cointat told journalists today he was confident that, by increasing tha price of milk and beef more than the price of grains and other products, there would be a better balance between supply and demand. The Common Market is a net importer of heef, and while it is still a surplus producer of dairy products, Mr. Cointat appeared confident that dairy farming was on the wane. Reforming measures have been hlocked by the market's farming lobby, a well-organized pressure group with political importance in the six member nations far out-weighing its numerical importance. About 13 percent of the market's total active population is engaged in agriculture. But today's decision indicates that. from now on, the pressure will be on the farmers to modernize, or else remain the poor cou-sins of industrial workers. These pressures will increase if the market is enlarged to include Britain, a country with a very small, hut relatively efficient, farming population.

Farmers Not Satisfied

BRUSSELS, March 25 (UPI),-Belgian farmers' organizations denounced the new agricultural policy as unsatisfactory and said price increases for milk, meat and cereals were "below expectations." "We will remain actively vigilant because it will take some time to see whet the council's decisions will mean on the level of the producers.

"At any rate, the farmers are determined to continue united action in the defense of their rights," he said. Andre de Tavernier, spokesman of the Boerenbond farmers' federation, said; "We consider the agreed upon price increases below expectations and fear that only half the increases will actually reach the farmer."

Woman Airs Plan to Kidnap Sioux to Lure Ex-Nazis to Trial in France The Palefaces

PARIS, March 25 (UPI).—Beate Klarsfeld, who once publicly slapped the face of Kurt Riesinger when he was chancellor of West Germany, said today that West Germany, said today that she plans to kidnap alleged Ger-man war criminals and deliver them for trial in France. In a statement to the press. Miss Klarsfeld, 31, claimed credit for Monday's attempted kidnap of former Nazi officer Kurt Lischka in Cologue. Miss Klarsfeld sold that was the first more against "more the first move against "more than 300 large-scale criminals that the German police cannot protect."

In Cologne, the prosecutor's office said yesterday that several nnidentified persons tried to drag Mr. Lischka into an auto as he got off a streetcar Monday afternoon but fled when police intervened.

Calls Him Gestapo Aide

Miss Klarsfeld identified Mr. Lischka; now 63, as the deputy chief of the Gestapo (political police) in France during World. War II. The Cologne statement, which said Mr. Lischka is now a businessman, called him a former SS (shock-troops) officer. Miss Klarsfeld, a former West German leftist reportedly married now to a French Jew whose father died in the Auschwitz concentration camp, received a fourmonth suspended sentence for her 1968 attack on Mr. Klesinger, whom she called a Nazi,

In her defense she said that she had given Mr. Klesinger a symbolic slap "in the name of the millions who died because of the Nazi regime," Mr. Klesinger had been a member of the Nazi party.

In her press release, Miss

Beate Klarsfeld Klarsfeld said her action now

The French are saying privately that West Germany also has been pressing for clarification from the British on sterling, hut that it was nobody's intention to dramatize the problem. It is rather a matter, say the French, of getting an idea of British intentions.

The French maintain that the role of sterling gives Britain nnfair political advantage in allowing Britain to increase its investments abroad and to repay long-term debts with short-term money.

Mr. Schumann also indicated he was not happy with the results of the last Brussels negotiating session. He said that Britain was going to have to ac-cept the community rules, including community preference, community financing and community agriculture. He said that the opening British financial bid of GENEVA, March 25 (UPI) .-Britain appealed anew to the Soviet Union today to accept an immediate han on biological weapons.

British disarmament negotia-tor Henry C. Hainworth said Russian insistence on linking hiological weapons to a ban on chemical warfare agents would delay agreement for years. Mr. Hainworth told the Geneva

The New 'East Lynne'-'Love Story'

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss DARIS, March 25 .- "Love Story" (at the Normandle, the Pub-licis Matignon and the Boul' Mich in English) is making millions of Americans cry, a fact that is causing millions of other Americans to double up with laughter. Reports are that earnings have already surpassed those of "The Sound of Music," a previous molasses Zeppelin. It is argued that such popularity indicates a marked change in American taste, that American audiences, weary of sensational sex on the screen. are now hungry for sweetness and light.

The American movie, however. has always traded heavily and profitably in sentimentality, not only in confecting marmalade bombs on the order of "Seventh Reaven," "Lilac Time." the Hardy aeries and Shirley Temole's vehicles, but also when treating almost any other subject: Science. literature. motherhood, marriage, death. war and even sensational sex. "Love Story" is nothing new. It is rather something very old. It is the "East Lynna" of our day and proves only that what was good enough for grandmother is good enough for us. "What can one say about a girl who died at 25?" inquires an off-screen volce in a lachrymose

ing jag. It decends, of course, who "one" is. Shakespeare had many beautiful things to say of Juliet, dead at 14, and what of Savage Londor's night of memories and sighs consecrated to Rose Avimer? What of the statement that emerges from a reading of Anne Frank's diary. And what of Webster's "Cover her face, mine eyes are dazzled; she died young"?

Time-Worn Tale

"Love Story" is the time-worn tale of poor girl-rich boy. She, the daughter of an immigrant Italian baker, has won, by her sounk and intelligence, a university scholarship. He is a wealthy Harvard undergraduate when they meet. His snobbish parents oppose the match, but the youngsters marry, with the boy's heavy father refus ing to continue to support his disobedient offspring. After working his way through law school, the young man becomes a prosperous New York attorney. One day the family physician informs moment. him that his wife has leukemia and will die within a few weeks. She, too, is aware of her fate. The couple, their mutual passion as their only consolation, bravely face the inevitable.

The scenario, though lacking in any depth-always pat and onedimensional—is serviceable, but it has been presented by Arthur Hiller in trite television form. whisper at the outset of this cry- The tear-jerking machinery---

Covent Garden's New 'Cosi' -'Intimate Theater Gem'

By Henry Pleasants

LONDON, March 25.-If asked to speculate on the probable respec-tive characteristics of two productions of "Cosl Fan Tutte." one at Glyndebourne, the other at Covent Garden, one might reasonably predict that the Glyndebourne production would be the better acted the Covent Garden the better sung.

And on the evidence of the present revival at Covent Garden. One would be wrong. "Cosl" will be back in the repertoire at Glyndebourne this summer, and it remains to be seen whether the form sheet will be confounded in that production, too, in other words, whether it will be better sung than acted.

At Covent Garden we have an intimate theater gem in a house that cries out for grand opera-or, at least, for great singing. There was none of that in last night's premiere; but in every other respect this is an intelligent, tasteful, stylish and continuously enjoyable production, rather of the kind one associates with Glyndebourne. and which fares better there.

Only Geraint Evans, singing Alfonso for the first time in his professional career, brings to his role the presence, the expansiveness and variety of gesture, the big sound where needed, and the artful and artistic exaggeration required for the projection of subtletics in big houses. This characterization is certain to be numbered nmou3 the masterpieces of a career that already has many to its credit.

Elisabeth Söderström, as Fiordiligi, gives another of those performances so characteristic of her work in recent years, where the accomplished actress, assisted by a profound musicality, resourceful vocalism and compelling personal charm, prevails against vocal limitations

Anne Howells as Dorabella, Ryland Davies as Ferrando and Robert Kerns as Guglieimo, play their parts fluently and enthusiastically, and sing agreeably. Graziella Sciutti's tiny Despina, a familiar and justly admired impersonation. is a bit lost in Coven: Garden, but hardly the less delightful. Colin Davis is an authoritative and sympathetic conductor when not opting, in the overture and the finales, for tempos too fast for man, woman or instrument. John Copley's staging takes the title-"So Do They All" (feminine--at its word, and leaves no donbts that the two girls are taken in by their lovers' masquerade: and to this end it eschews most of the slapstick that customarily draws the laughs but ruins the comedy by rendering the young ladies' credulity incredible. It's a virtue, but, again a virtue better attuned to a smaller house.

The French Lines in Geneva

Alphonse Daudet is an author inexplicably neglected by the cinema. Aside from Pagnol's "Letters From My Mill," Seatsrom's "Confessions of a Queen," based on "Les Rois en Exil," in the silent days, and the American version of "Sapho," known as "Inspiration," with Greta Garbo, none of his novels has yet gone before the cameras, though their materials would be ideally suited to the screen. The new "Sapho" 'at the Beriltz, the Ambassade-Gaumont and the Montparnesse-Pathé) is unlikely to forward the fortunes of his work in the movies. It is grotesque distortion of his famous story with his Fanny LeGrand, the siren of the Parl-

The French premiere of "Intolleranza 71" by the Italian composer Luigi Nono will be given March 26, 28 and 30 by the Grand Theatre of Nancy in a staging by Jean-Claude Riber and under the musical direction of Hans Gler-, ster. In the cast are Maria de ENEVA, March 25 .- The Lanvin-Genève boutique had scarcely opened when Mrs. Felix Houphouet-Boigny, wife of the president of the Ivory Coast, bought three dresses.

Other Paris couturiers have opened shops in Geneva in the past ocupie of years, drawn by the rich, international clientele which flows in regularly; checking on its numbered bank accounts, Courrèges, Ungaro, Cerruti, Cardin, Yves Saint Laurent and Ted Lapidus are all there, but the Lanvin venture is the most ambitious of them all.

Spread over 700 square meters and three floors, it is more like a specialty shop with separate floors for men's and women's ready-to-wear while the ground floor is stocked with a mixed bag of accessories. Entertainment in New York....

is how The New York Times critics rated new movies:

"Making It," the etory of a 17-year-old high-school student, written by Peter Bart and directed by John Erman (his first theatrical feature), starring Kristoffer Tabori, a successful child actor on the New York stage some years ago, "happily avoids a lot of the more hysterical clichés of most under-20 mov-ies," reports Vincent Canby. There are no riots, no psychedelic sequences and the sound-track music is kept to a mininum. But Phil (Tshori) is such a mild, non-particular sort of fellow that it is impossible to become terribly involved." "The Andromeda Strain," based on the book by Michael Crichton, directed by Robert Wise with creenplay by Nelson Gidding, is dull science - fiction, says Roger Greenspun: "When the alien green matter in the massive mi-croscope suddenly shimmers and expands, in agonized horror the Nobel Prize-winning bacteriologist turns to the distinguished micro-biologist with, 'My God, it's growling!" Several additions phis a few subtractions in the screen

"Equally lovely and even more abstract," he said, "is the seven-minute Matrix,"" made by John Whitney, a computer-programmed film which consists of precise, geometric shapes that move, reproduce and eventually evolve into new shapes on tha screen. The other "unqualified success" is Gunvor Nelson's "My Name Is Cona," a camera study of a small girl coming face to face with such "imponderables" as her own identity.

"The Buttercup Chain," directed by Robert Ellis Miller, was judged by Vincent Canby "like the four young people whose interlocking loves it charts, rather attractive to look at and none too bright in the head." The film has within "the mean noise too bright in the near. The film has within it some "legitimately interesting" but largely mexplored human rela-tionships," the critic said, "like most soap operas."

But the present problem, he noted, is rooted in the divergence of short-term interest rates, particularly the higher rates prevailing in Europe, which act like a magnet in drawing U.S. funds.

Rates to Change

Mr. Emminger said the experts' consensus was that there would be a "better convergence" of short-term interest rates, with. U.S. rates edging up and those, in Europe declining over the nextfew months and especially in the second half of the year ...

Noting that European central banks had been forced to lower; their discount rates to help stem the dollar inflow, Mr. Emininger acknowledged that their autonomy to set policy exclusively on the basis of domestic considerations "has been diminished." But

Where in the World

"Mexico has enjoyed one of the highest rates of economic growth in the world in recent years' says an authoritative U. S. Department of Chining ree Study. Why? Because here's one of the world's most stable currencies. Because qualified experts call Mexico " the standout example of responsible government and business in Latin America" Because there is a controled economic explosion going on in Mexico... in industry, public works, consumer goods, and international trade ... which has created a true "investors market", with a yield which invites comparison anywhere in the world.

Maybe this helps to explain why the international "smart money" men are putting their funds down Mexico way ... and why maybe you should, too, for exactly the same good reasons.

Here are two offerings among many... BANK TIME DEPOSIT CONTRACTS: Depending upon the length of time involved, these short-term loans to Mexico's Industrial Development Banks yield a net of 9% and up, after Mexican taxes... high enough to make them one of the world's most attractive and safe investments interest is payable monthly. Minimum Investment: $4,000.00 U. S. dollars, or equivalent in any internationally recognized currency. BANK LIQUID BONDS: These Demand Deposits pay 8.73% net after Mexican taxes, interest payable quarterly; and your money is inmediately available whenever you need it. (These Bonds are also ideal for use in compounding interest earned on Bank Time Deposit Contracts) Minimum Investment: $4,000 U.S. doliars, or equivalent in any internationally recognized currency.

The diagramed deal from the Vanderbilt Cup event in Atlanta last week was one of those that brought the cup-winning Dallas Aces to the brink of near defeat. The veteran partnership of Paul Hodge and John Gerber, which has been a powerful force on the national championship scene for many years, brought home a tricky game contract.

Gerber as North decided that his concentration of strength in the minor suits made one notrump an undesirable opening bid. He bid one diamond and contented himself with a raise to the two level when his partner's one-heart response was overcalled with one spade

South made a move toward game by cue-bidding in spades, and the partnership settled in

CRAZY SUNDAYS F. Scott Fitzgerald in Hollywood By Aaron Latham. Viking. 308 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Walter Clemons

AARON LANTHAM'S engagingly titled account of Scott Fitzgerald's involvement with Hollywood covers not only his final years there but also a couple of brisfer stops earlier (incloding his screen test as a leading man in the twenties and his famous disgrace at Sunday tea with the Irving Thalbergs in the early thirties). How much you enjoy it will depend on your appetite for Hollywood anecdotage and for details of Fitzgerald's by now rather familiar personal history. This isn't a book that changes the picture in any major way, as Nancy Milford's remarkable "Zelda". did. Latham modestly follows Arthur Mizener's and particularly Andrew Turnbull's blographies. But he fills in some gaps, he names some names, he's interviewed several people we haven't heard from before. . The most valuable (and most tantalizing and frustrating) aspect of . his book is that he's had a look at Scott Fitzgerald's movie scripts, which almost nobody else has seen or written about.

When Fitzgerald turned up in Hellywood in 1937 to write scripts for M-G-M, he was 41 years old, dreaming of "all the money and glory beyond the impregnable walls" that would pay Zeida's hospital expenses, provide his daughter's schooling and restore his lost fame. His starry reputation of the 1920s was so extinguished that people kept doing double-takes on learning that he was still alive. Edwin Knopf, who got him the M-G-M job, was shocked at meeting "this completely crushed and frightened man." Anita Loos remembers "that unhealthy humility of the reformed alcoholic." He didn't shine at gatherings where a wisecrack was the ticket.

In the writers' building at Metro, he worked on "A' Yank at Oxford," "Three Comrades," "In-fidelity" (a hopeful title-change to "Fidelity" failed to appease the Hays Office and the film was never made), "The Women", and "Madame Curie," Sad ironles. abound. tougher and more comprehensive than in the post, reliable sources in the International Olympic Committee said today.

The rule, unanimously approv-ed by the IOC's executive committee in Lausanne earlier this month, forbids any athlete from using his name, photograph or success for publicity purposes. It also prohibits him from writing articles or appearing on radio or television on his own behalf during the Games, the source said. "A competitor must respect the Olympic tradition both in spirit and in ethics and must always have devoted himself to sport as a accordary activity for his pleasure, without expecting remuneration for his participation,

By Russell Baker

W'ASHINGTON .--- II уоц аге the parent of a 13-year-old child or even an 18-year-old hrute with hiceps like Max Baer, you doubtiess wondered why your telephone keeps ringing.

is the 200th time it inas rung today," you have cried aloud to an indifferent heaven. "What can they possibly . . have to talk about?" To answer this question scientifically, which is Baker

the only way a vital American answers a question of this sort. or almost any other sort for that matter, an 18-year-old named Mark was introdoced into a house with R telephone, and the conversations were recorded. This is what they have to talk about: Mark called Jimmy to say he was in a house with a telephone and was ready to take calls. A few minutes later Mark received a call from Theodore, who inquired how Mark was feeling. Mark said he was feeling "not too had." He also commented on local meteorological conditions, recorded guitar performance and the condition of the human race. This last, he said, seemed less than altogether satisfactory. Theodore responded in a sympathetic vein, and then broke off the conversation. explaining that he had to call "a chick named Ulalume," who was "sucha drag she's only getting 50 to 60 phone calls a day." Mark volunteered to give Ulalume a few calls.

Then, Mark was called hy Jimmy. Jimmy gave him the num-ber of a person named Hector who was pining for the sound of telephone bells, Before Mark could call Hector. however, be received a call from Dave. Dave said he had heard that Mark had just had a great telephone chat with Theodore. Mark then phoned Theodore to tell him of Dave's congratu-latory call. He could not give Theodore B full account of that moment, he said, as he had to phone "a cat oamed Hector." Before he could dial Hector. however. Mark received a telephone call from Ulalume. She asked bow Mark was feeling, how deeply he admired Dustin Hoffman aod what he thought about Mark said he would like to have a long chat with Ulalume but he had to call Hector. Dialing the number which Jimmy had given him. Mark asked the boy who answered if he was Hector. The boy sald he was Hector. all right. Mark said his friend. Jimmy, had given him this number and told him there was a cat there named Hector who wasn't heating cuough bells. Hector said it was good of Mark to make the old phone ring. Mark said he would telephone later. In the meantime, he suggested, Hector might like to phone Ulalume. Mark had scarcely rung off when his phone rang. It was Cora. She had had a call from

Dave, who had asked her to call Mark because Mark was having a most immemorial year and needed lots of bell-ringing. Mark told Cora that Dave had given her the wrong information and that it was Ulalume who necded hell sounds. Cora apologized, hut said that as long as she had Mark on the phone she simply had to tell him about the terrific phone conversation Pedro and Gloria Carker had conducted 45 minutes ago. It was about the feasibility of Pedro's getting the use of the family car. Mark immediately phoned Pedro to congratulate him upon his phone conversation with Gloria Carker. Pedro said it was nothing really, compared to the terrifle phone couversation which Mark had had with Theodore. Mark excused himself to phone Hector, and rang off.

Before Mark could activate the machinery to talk to Hector, however. Theodore phoned him. Theodore said he was extremely pleased about the terrific chat which he and Mark had had earlier. "Me, too," said Mark, Next, Mark was telephoned hy Hector, who said that he was feeling fine and that it was a nice day at his telephone location. Mark suggested that Hector telephone Cora and find out how the weather was at her house. Then, almost immediately, Mark was phoned by Jimmy. Jimmy sald his watch had stopped. He wondered if Mark knew anybody he could telephone wbo could give him the exact time.

Mark's answer is not recorded. because of the cessation of service caused at Mark's house when the recording agent tore the telephone from the wall aud hurled it through a picture window.

The Artist Who Is Inventing Himself

By Jules B. Farber

MSTERDAM-Contemporary icons, made from the flotsam of Amsterdam harbor, are on view, in the company of centuriesold Russian icons, at the Hüsstege & Jaski gallery until April 30.

maker, though largely the product of his own imagination, is known. He is Victor Four, horn 42 years ago in New York City of a Greek mother and German father and baptized Walter Gluck. He first exchanged the name Walter for Karl, later became Victor Fourteen and still later shortened that to Victor Four. He is working toward a monk-like existence and if he aucceeds he has a name ready for himself. It will he Schastian.

The artist became Victor Four in 1964 when he settled on an 80-year-old, 160-ton freighter on the Amstel River. "Numbers have always been important to me-I'm number 14-so I made up the name of Victor Fourteen," he said. But it sounded too much like the Sun King so I shortened it to Four."

En route to becoming an icon maker. Four was a seaman and shipped around the world several times, lived in a Buddhist temple in Tokyo, handed out CARE powdered milk in Korea, courted Millie Perkins and helped ber to Hollywood with photographs he took for Paris Match and drove around Europe for a few years in a hattered "I must have been fired from about 40 jobs on my way to truck. Amsterdam," he said.

Still wearing the name of Karl Gluck when, after several visits, he decided to stay in Amsterdam, he found work as ao advertising photographer, but the assassination of John P. Kennedy in 1963 changed him, made bim want to express despair. He began by painting eight battered hatch covers with graphic epitaphs, using stencils for lettering and adding grim shapes.

Then, working with weathered bits of old ships, Four scratched, sculpted and etched crude images as a comment on the Harlem riots of 1964. Later he satirized Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" and scorned society with an over-sized balf-dollar which bears the motto: "In God We Trust Sometimes."

Since that period, outside approval has interested Four very little. In lean periods his diet consists of oatmeal-eaten with a Mickey Mouse spoon.

"An artist bas to make and theo protect what he has made, and, far behind other considerations, he has to let others see it. If you're sure of what you're doing, you go on. I give myself all the medals.

Honor yourself," Four said. He sometimes literally pins medals on things he likes.

Four bought the freighter for his 70-year-old father to settle down on, hut, "used to his American comfort," the father only stayed for three months. The ship, which has remained an empty hull, was christened the Henry David Thoreau because, Four said, the writer's "Walden" shaped his adult life. The artist dedicated his first exhibition in Amsterdam to "Thoreau, who somehow brought ma Amsterdam. The rest of the trip I will make on my own."

The ship, with a tattered 49-star American flag flying, has become a haven for passing young people, "not hippies but musicians, preferably classical performers, studeots seeing the world, anyoon who interests me, especially nice girls who need somewhere to sleep.

I have no time for hippies. They're boring, all the same." The Thoreau is furnished with Flea Market relics and tables made of flotsam. Cats abound and a notice on the landing advertises for more. There is no electricity or running water and heat comes from a small oil stove. Hundreds of icons are stacked inside the ship and Four has taped up samples of his oew direction: paper paintings which will one day fill 22 volumes which he is "writing" with the aid of a nine-vear-old typewriter, penned and painted collages and anything else at hand be thins will help tell his story. 'Each page is a thread of truth," he said. "I tell all."

About women, he says: "Christ, I was once so 'married' to Ans that all of the love in me was forever burned ont . . . Ans felt that she was No. 86, so with me No. 14, we made 100 percent impossible. When I came back from my mother's funeral in New York. Ans was gone ... My only thought was to have physical pain so I went to the chopping board and cut off a finger. All the blackness disappeared."

However, women come and go in Four's life, and there is one who stays: Elizabeth, a Dane. She says: "We are many. It's the only way with Victor. He cao't exist without complete freedom." was she who coovinced Four to show some of his icons in the It Hüsstege & Jaski show.

Four had his first and last one-man show to New York at the Lefehre Gallery early in 1966. John Canaday of The New York Times observed "wit and tenderness," and the show was a success.

An enthusiastic gallery director flew to Amsterdam, as Four recalls, and said: "It was great. I want six more of this and ten of that, and forget these, no one wants them. That was the big father dictating what was good and bad, what would sell. He wanted to help me ont of my error. I thanked him. That was the end of my New York gallery.

Mao Tse-tung on PEOPLE: Best-Dressed List

British rock star Mick Jagger and Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung are included in a list of the world's best-dressed men, compiled for the magazine Tailor and Cutter. The list, due to he published today, also included Prince Charles' tailor, Teddy Watson, hut not the prince himself, whose clothing was criticized recently by Karl Dallas, who compiled the list There were 100 people on the list, including: pop singers Tom Jones and Engelbert Humperdinck, actors Warren Beatiy and Peter Fonda, and Malcolm Leigh, direc-tor of "Games Lovers Play," one of the most successful films of the year. Among the others were Noel Coward, soccer star Georgie Best and Prince William of Gloncester. French designers Yves Saint-Laurent and Pierre Cardin also claimed their places, alongside French actor Alain Delon and Italian journalist Michelangelo Testa

Actor Beatty said he twisted his ankle painfully twice Wednesday-once when he stumbled in front of an oncoming locomotive and again when a thief entered his unlocked hotel room in Hamburg. "It was not a good night," Beatty said. The first accident occurred during the filming of a scene for the motion picture at Hamburg's main station. The scene called for him to be chased across tracks in front of a moving locomotive. "I just went down a little bit, but somehow when the thing was bearing down on me, I got up very qoickly," he said with a laugh. Locomotives look particularly huge at that angle."

He was treated at a first aid clinic and then returned to his hotel to rest up his taped ankle. Beatty said he left the door to his hotel suite open so that he would not have to drag himself to unlock the door when breakfast came the pert morning. "A thief came into my suite and walked into the bedroom while I was asleep. I jumped out of bed six feet in a horizontal position, aod when I came down, I twisted my ankle again. He ran off." A member of the hotel staff confirmed that Beatty bad reported the iocident, but said it might only have been someone who wandered into the room by mistake. Hamburg police said they had not received a complaint from the hotel. Beatty thinks he can resume filming in another two days.

Beattle Paul McCartney flew into London from the United States yesterday, and said he

French singer Serge Gainsbourg. with whom she made the much hanned record "Je t'aime." The Mirror said the marriage will follow the baby's expected July Barry.

Tricia Nixon, after some days of indecision, has settled on June 12 as the day for her wedding to Edward Finch Cox.
